Program helps anti-insurgency campaign in Samar

Rep. Tan thumbs down any ELCAC defunding

CATBALOGAN CITY-Samar Rep. Sharee Ann Tan expressed her total support for the continuation implementation of the program of the Duterte administration to end the communist armed conflict in the country.

In fact, she 'politely decline' to co-author a bill as proposed by some of her colleagues at the House of Representatives to defund the National Task Force to End Local Communist Armed Conflict(NTF-ELCAC).

According to her, the implementation of ELCAC in Samar, in particular, was beneficial on the fight against members of the New People's Army (NPAs) as the province continues to battle with the insurgents.

"We have different views (on insurgency).But for me, insurgency is the main problem in Samar, to include my (second congressional) district," Tan said.

"That is why, I politely decline for me to co-author a bill defunding the ELCAC because I see it as the solution to end the insurgency problem in the province," the lawmaker said.

Under the program, barangays identified to have been 'cleared' under the influence of the NPA will receive funding allocation of P20 million for their development project.

With this funding allocation, residents and officials of far-flung barangays will not allow members of the rebel group to use or 'influence' them.

Rep. Sharee Ann Tan

In Samar province, 87 barangays from 12 towns have been identified to benefit the P20 million funding for this year.

Meantime, Major Gen. Pio Diñoso III, the commanding officer of the 8th Infantry Division based this city, said it's about time to end the armed conflict in the region saying it's very costly.

He said that the money spent by the government to fight the rebels could be better used to address the needs of the people in the rural villages.

Diñoso said that because of the need to address the insurgency problem in the region, the national government is spending almost P5 billion a year for the salaries of the soldiers alone.

"If we don't have an insurgency problem(in Eastern Visayas), there could be no military (and) the amount being used to address the concerns of our people in the villages are small compared to the amount spent for the military because we have these NPAs," he said.

He said that to construct a farm-to-market road for example, the government will only be spending at see Rep. Tan /page 7 ...

Salcedo mayor sees refrigerated van from DAR an opportunity

NEWS

SALCEDO, Eastern Samar – An opportunity not only for the recipient agrarian reform beneficiaries organization (ARBO) but for the entire municipality as well is how Mayor Melchor Mergal of this fifth-class municipality perceives the refrigerated closed van provided by the Department of Agrarian Reform (DAR), rather than just a plain assistance.

During the turnover of the delivery vehicle worth P1.8 million to the FEA Agrarian Reform Cooperative (FEA ARCo) early this month, Mergal stressed, "It is not only an ordinary refrigerated van. It offers a whole lot of opportunity where we can start the engagements of our farmers to multi-corporations because we have the facility."

Thus, Mergal encouraged FEA ARCo to sustain their operation because according to him, "It's not only your organization that will be benefited but the whole municipality as well."

Provincial Agrarian Reform Program Officer II (PARPO II) Gilberto Apilado said, FEA ARCo, though situated in the remote village of Iberan in this town, is one of the progressive ARBOs in Eastern Samar.

Aside from being producer of various crops and processed foods, they also serve as consolidator of farmers' products throughout the province, particularly cassava and cacao.

Chief of the Program Beneficiaries Development Division at the DAR Regional Office, Melecia Ong, explained that they recommended FEA ARCo to be the recipient of the delivery truck in Eastern Visayas because this ARBO has never received a common service facility from DAR yet.

Ong, who represented Regional Director Ismael Aya-ay in the turnover rite, disclosed that FEA ARCo upon evaluation by DAR Central Office passed the criteria, including marketing arrangements with institutional markets.

has existing marketing contracts with the Department of Health retained hospitals, Department of Education, Bureau of Jail Management and Penology, and San Miguel Corporation for their products ranging from fresh fruits and vegetables to processed foods.

"They indeed need this type of facility to keep the freshness of perishable products," Ong added.

She further disclosed that this facility was funded under DAR's PaSSOver: ARBold Move for Deliverance of our Farmers from the COVID-19 Pandemic project hoping to bolster the role of ARBOs as front-liners in the food supply chain by helping them overcome the obstacles in the consolidation, marketing, and delivery of farm products.

Meanwhile, FEA ARCo

Chairman Luis Bayarong considers this assistance as an investment for them to be able to help others too.

In acceptance, he revealed their immediate plan to use the refrigerated closed van in delivering dressed chickens and fresh eggs which they supply throughout the province.

Mayor Melgar was so thankful for the assistance DAR has extended to his constituents which according to him, "the local government could not provide due to our limited resources".

"An amon nala, an pagbulig paglink ha magkadurudilain nga ahensya," (For our part, we will help link them to the different agencies) said Melgar.

7 NPA members yield to government in Leyte, Samar provinces

TACLOBAN CITY- At least seven alleged members of the New People's Army (NPAs) have surrendered before government forces in Leyte and Samar provinces.

In Hilongos, Leyte, six rebels surrendered to the 14th Infantry Battalion which is under the command of Col. Ernesto Dela Rosa Jr.

Aside from the rebels, about 19 sympathizers also surrendered last May 23.

The former rebels claimed that difficulties living in the mountains and threat to their lives were the reasons why they decided to give up their armed struggles and return to the folds of the laws.

They also disclosed that they were also involved in the killing of Vergilio Loquias, former village chairman of San Antonio, Hilongos last August 15,2019 and 36 others during the infamous 'Operation Venereal Disease' purging conducted by the communist group back in the early 1980's where suspected government informants were killed.

Col. Dela Rosa, whose headquarters is based in Mahaplag town, also in Leyte, lauded the decision of the former rebels and their sympathizers to surrender to the government.

"We pay tribute to the courage and perseverance of the surrendered individuals against the CPP-NPA-NDF. I hope that our brothers and sisters who continue to use violence against the government will give up while it is not too late. We will not hesitate to fulfill our duty to protect the people of Brgy. San Antonio and its surrounding areas," he said in a statement.

Meantime, another rebel, only identified as 'Ka Baki' surrendered to police authorities in Paranas town, Samar last Wednesday (May 26).

The 24-year old rebel was said to be a militia member who belonged to the central front Samar-1 and yielded one Caliber 38 revolver and six pieces of live ammunitions.

He is now under the custody of the 802nd Maneuver Company in Paranas town, Samar.

Indigenous group in Basey, Samar not ready to be vaccinated, says leader

TACLOBAN CITY-Members of the indigenous tribe in Basey town in Samar province said that they are not yet 'ready' to subject themselves to vaccination against coronavirus disease(COVID-19).

Their hesitancy on the inoculation is due to the reason of possible side effects on them, Jennifer Cabadungan, 38, said.

Cabadungan acts as the leader and spokesperson of the Mamanwa tribe living in Barangay Guirang of the said town.

"While the vaccine being offered by our government is meant to give protection against COVID-19, we members of the tribe are not ready to be vaccinated," she said.

"We don't know what will be its effects to us, to our bodies, especially to our elders. So for now, we are not open to it," Cabadungan said.

At present, there are 28 Mamanwa families composed of over 80 individuals living in Guirang.

It was learned from Cabadungan that since the start of the pandemic last year, no member of their tribe has been affected by the deadly virus.

"When the pandemic started last March (of last year), we temporarily abandoned our houses and went to our farms to ensure that we will be safe from possible infection from the virus," she said.

The farms she was referring is located within their sitio in Wespal of said village but are far from where their houses are situated.

Cabadungan said that they are following the mandatory health protocols like the wearing of face mask, especially if they go out from their village as they are aware about the pandemic.

Mercy Caboboy, information officer of the town, said that while they understand the reason why the tribe members are hesitant to be vaccinated, they need to receive the vaccine for their protection following the priority list.

"Surely (we want them vaccinated) but we have to follow the priority list," she said.

Aside from the Mamanwas in Basey, other tribal groups could also be found in some parts of Leyte, Biliran, and Northern Samar. (JOEY A. GABIETA/ROEL T. AMAZONA))

Philippine cockatoo sighted in Homonhon Island

"The sighting of the critically endangered Philippine cockatoo in the Island of Homonhon underscores the need to protect its natural habitat from further destruction as its presence in the island is only the third confirmed location in the country aside from Palawan and Mindoro," says Forester Virginio K. Cugtas, of the Conservation and Development Division (CDD) of the Department of Environment and Natural Resources (DENR) in Region 8.

He was the designated team leader of DENR personnel that monitored and verified the presence of the Philippine cockatoo in the island.

The International Union for Conservation of Nature (IUCN) has classified the Philippine cockatoo or the Red-vented cockatoo (Cacatua haematuropygia) as critically endangered because of its population decline between 60-80% from 1980 to the present as a result of destructive human activities.

A recent estimate by the Katala Foundation, suggests that only 1,000 of them are left in the wild with 70-75% found in Rasa Island, Palawan.

Its decline can be attributed to poaching because of its high demand among collectors and the destruction of their habitats which are the mangrove and forest trees as well as the conversion of lowland forests to agriculture, mining, and human settlement.

The Foundation is an organization that successfully implemented the Philippine Cockatoo Conservation Program (PCCP) with the Department of Environment and Natural Resources – Biodiversity Management Bureau (DENR-BMB).

Local officials and residents have been pushing for the conservation and protection of the Philippine cockatoo and its natural habitat.

With the support of the Philippine Misereor Partnership Incorporated (PMPI), the DENR has been collaborating with the LGU of Guiuan in Eastern Samar and the BLGU of Inapulangan of Homonhon Island for the area to be declared as a critical habitat based on DENR Memorandum Circular 2007-02 which provides the guidelines on the establishment and management of critical habitat enumerated in DENR Memorandum Circular No. 2007-02. (PR)

A Philippine cockatoo was recently seen in Homonhon Island off Guiuan town in Eastern Samar. The bird is considered to be critically endangered with an estimated 1,000 could be found mostly in Rasa Island.

Extremes

it comes COVID-19 vaccination, one could easily find the extremes among our people. In fact, that's almost how the majority of them could be categorized, being in the extreme opposites, the neutral within being just comprised by the minority.

As the coronavirus rages on in many parts of our archipelago thus increasing the number of new infections, with the vaccine being the only sure hope of containing it, many of our people remain skeptical and unfriendly with it, refusing to be vaccinated by all means, citing all the negative feedbacks that they have heard about it from various sources such as the social media, the tri-media, plus the prevalent rumors, gossips, and fake news.

Some people, on the other hand, are so eager and itchy they could not wait for their turn to be vaccinated, even if they don't belong to the priority sectors of society. They impatiently employ all means-connections, bribery, influence, power, intimidation etc.—just so they could be accommodated next in the long line of vaccine priorities. Reports of personalities finally getting the vaccine in such manners are quite many.

Both of these extremes have been giving the government some sort of headache, the reason being that they are not that easy to deal with. Authorities have to run after those who stubbornly resist the vaccination though it's already their turn. And this entails time, money, and effort. On the other side, the government tries its best to discipline the impatient "intruders", even going as far as charging them in court for "illegal" actions.

The aim of the government is just to expedite the vaccination process so that the citizens would somehow get some kind of shield against the deadly virus, and so that the economy will be put back in place, which is necessary for our country's recovery. This is not quite easy, though, as exemplified by the attitudes of the extremes.

The new chief of the Philippine National Police has allowed the Department of Justice (DOJ) to check the records of at least 61 police operations that resulted in the deaths of drug suspects, Justice Secretary Menardo Guevarra said on Monday.

Since the Philippine problem is bound to be looked into by the Department of Justice as the news story signifies, we will not dwell on that for we cannot touch the matter without navigating the sub judicial rule. Knowledge should lead us to love

WE have to be clear about this point. We should try our best to know as much as we can, but seeing to it that our knowledge leads us to love that is proper to us. It should be that love that ultimately comes from God. We should not dare to know things without being concerned about loving them the way God loves them.

Knowing without loving, or without loving in the proper way, can only lead us to see and understand things improperly and most likely to be judgmental. The most simple and obvious example of this phenomenon is to see how a toddler who starts to know things misses a lot of things for him to behave properly. He can be attracted to fire not knowing it can do him harm, for example.

And as the toddler starts to grow in age and knowledge, he of course starts to improve in his behavior. But since knowing and loving proper involve a process and take time, it usually happens that whatever growth of knowledge that growing child has leads him to make rash judgments or judgments that fail to consider many other, and even, more important aspects of any issue at hand.

We really have to be most wary of the need to animate our desire for more knowledge with the love that comes from God. Only then can our knowledge become true knowledge. Yes, we have to understand that our knowledge can only be true when it goes with charity that comes from God.

St. Paul said something in this regard: "Knowledge puffs up while love builds up. Those who think they know something do not yet know as they ought to know. But whoever loves God is known by God." (1 Cor 8,1-3)

We have to see to it that the more we know, the more we ought to love the way God loves, as shown to us and even commanded of us by Christ himself. If our knowledge, which can get very considerable, leads us ers, impatient and irritated by others, etc., we have to convince ourselves that that knowledge, no matter how significant in human terms, is not yet true knowledge. The real knowledge would always make us more to be judgmental of oth-

understanding, patient, compassionate, merciful of others. It certainly prevents us from pride, vanity and conceit, since we would realize that everything that we know and have are things we received from God in the end.

In this regard, St. Paul said: "What do you have that you did not receive? And if you did receive it, why do you boast as though you did not?" (1 Cor 4,7) Yes, the more knowledge we have, the more humble we ought to become.

And given the tremendous reality that governs our life, considering that our life is not simply natural but also supernatural, we should realize that our knowledge would always be incomplete. In fact, the old philosopher Aristotle once said, "The more you know, the more you don't know."

It is precisely because of this condition that the more knowledge we have, the more humble we should also be. Humility in our knowledge allows the love that comes from God to enter and to grow in us.

The very intellectually gifted should see to it that their knowledge makes them more humble and infused with God's love as shown by Christ and put into effect by the Holy Spir-

Boxing Contract Signed; PACMAN vs ERROL SPENCE

This Columnist's Article published in the Ley-Sam Daily Express issue dated 25 May 2021 wrongly declared that Philippines boxing icon, Manny Pacquiao would be fighting American welterweight champ Mikey Garcia.

Since local Columnists like me don't have direct connections with organizations abroad, our impression was that said negotiation (with Mikey Garcia) was already a "done deal," since sports news for several weeks practically carried the same follow-up stories. So sorry that this Columnist was somehow misled.

And so, the other day, (the final news about the said boxing bout) headlined below appeared in sports pages in major dailies in the country.

PACQUIAO UN-AUGUST VEILS 21 WITH FIGHT UN-BEATEN SPENCE IN VEGAS

"Los Angeles -- Philboxing ippine icon Manny Pacquiao said Friday (Saturday in Manila) he'll fight unbeaten unified welterweight world champion Errol Spence in Last Vegas in August 21, 2021.

"The 42-year-old Pacman will be fighting for the first time since he beat Keith Thurman in July 2019 for the World Boxing Association (WBA) welterweight ti-revealed "Pacman his plans with a Twitter post of their promotional poster for the bout, captioned "Pacquiao vs Spence, August 21, 2020, Las Vegas, Nevada."

"The Athletic, citing an unnamed source, reported that Pacquiao had signed a deal for a bout to be available on Fox pay-per-view and the boxing venue was expected to be the MGM

"Pacquiao, a senator in the Philippines, told the US sports outlet that the fight "might be his last," -- Pacman's Last Boxing Bout! If so, he appears to want to go out with a bang!

"Spence, the 31y/o WBC and IBF champion is 27-O (with no losses) is coming off a dominant December victory over Danny Garcia -- his first fight since surviving a near fatal rollover car accident.

"Pacquiao, who owns a record of 62-7-2 (winloss-draw), had been planning a return to the ring for some time, and earlier this month the targeted opponent had appeared to be American Mikey Garcia, but the negotiations never entered the final stages.

"Philippine media had said a July fight against Garcia was "in the cards," after Top Rank chief Bob Arum told Boxing Scene,com that Pacquiao and Terence Crawford had an agreement in place for a June 5, 2021 bout in Abu Dhabi; but the plan had fallen apart. (End of Quote.)

Now dear readers, have you noticed the above-quoted press release?

This Columnist asks why the announcement about the boxing fight came from Pacquiao camp. Why wasn't the announcement made by Boxing Promoter Bob Arum, as was the usual case (if I'm not mistaken) in past Pacman fights? And why the "silence" from the Errol Spence camp?

My "Senior ty-Centers" mind could only say na "iba talaga ang candidato -- sa pag'aanunsyo pa lang ng buksing, kailangan nauuna siya sa mga balita, o' sa pagbabalita!" That's called in showbiz lingo as "Star Billing!"

Well, good for Senator Manny Pacquiao; and Good Luck to the presidential aspirant!.

Pacman somehow got his wish during final negotiations -- that the Pacquiao-Spence Bout be held BEFORE October. The Boxing Bout will be on August 21, 2021.

And to sort-of "refresh" our readers' memories, October 1 to 8 is the week when see Boxing /page 7 ...

Special Report

Women's multiple burdens worsened during the COVID-19 pandemic in Tacloban City

Women in Tacloban City were forced to juggle "multiple and complex" roles after the country was locked down last year due to COVID-19.

Like most women in poor and developing economies, those living and working in Tacloban had to deal with additional burdens brought about by the pandemic, according to a case study released in March 2021.

Although spouses and children occasionally took over household chores, women in Tacloban still felt "overloaded" because they still helped kids in their online classes.

"Assisting their children in completing their class modules also overloaded some parents as this takes a lot of their time," said the case study which surveyed 65 women and 15 men from three villages in Tacloban City — Barangays 83A (San Jose), 104 (Asuncion), and 91 (Abucay).

The case study — which has a counterpart report about the City of Manila - was organized and written by Amy Exconde, an assistant professor at the University of the Philippines-Tacloban.

The study is part of the Citizens' Monitoring of Financing for COVID-19 Response and Recovery: Focus on the Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank (AIIB) Loan Project under the auspices of Social Watch Philippines and supported by Oxfam Pilipinas. The project examined the AIIB's US$750-million loan to the Philippines which co-financed the COVID-19 Active Response and Expenditure Support (CARES) pro-

The program contains several measures to combat the pandemic's adverse impacts, including, but not limited to, expanding medical services to step up testing and care for affected populations and providing social protection and livelihood support, such as the social amelioration program (SAP).

With resources stretched more thinly under the pandemic, local governments such as Tacloban City had to rely on the dedication and the civic duty of its barangay health workers, who made sure that the population washed their hands, wore their masks, and physically kept their distance from one an-

Of the city's 412 total barangay health workers, 202 are volunteers. Only two of the total 210 regular health workers are men, the report

Thirty-nine-year Khaleen Bertulfo, a barangay volunteer worker, is one of them.

Khaleen has also been trained under the Department of Health's Barangay Nutrition Scholar program whose task is look after the nutritional needs of babies and kids up to five years old.

As a result of her training, she receives an additional P4,000 (US$80) monthly honorarium which is sourced from the city's internal revenue allotment.

Khaleen's duties include regular house to house visits to check that children are properly fed and that they receive immunizations. She also provides counseling for pregnant and lactating women in Abucay, the largest barangay in Tacloban with a 10,000 population.

But this was all before the pandemic.

A few days after the whole country was locked down last year, Khaleen found herself performing added work by helping out with administrative work for her barangay.

"I helped process permits, clearances, and certifications that needed to be signed by the barangay chairman," Khaleen said. "These included new requirements that arose owing to the lockdown."

Despite these additional tasks, she was - and still is — able to focus on her duties, such as convincing mothers to have their kids immunized against polio.

In February this year, her tasks became slightly complicated after some non-immunized children in her barangay developed colds and coughs. "Some mothers still refuse to listen and have their children immunized," Khaleen said, adding that she always promotes the benefits of anti-polio vaccines, and more recently, the virtues of regular hand-washing.

Khaleen recognizes that she is able to focus on the details of her job because of the help of her husband and the support of her siblings and their families. "No one in my family starved during the lockdown. We were able to help one another because we lived together in one private compound," she said.

Her brother, who manages an eatery, also ensured that everyone — her kids included — ate three square meals a day during the lockdown. Similarly, her husband helped with the laundry when he temporarily stopped driving trucks for a living, Khaleen pointed out.

In May 2020, two months after the whole country was locked down, Tacloban City was able to put up two COVID-19 testing centers — the state-run Eastern Visayas Regional COVID-19 Testing Center (EVRCTC) and the privately-managed Divine Word Hospital Virology Laboratory (DWHVL), the case study said.

Before these swab facilities were established, all samples were sent to either

In July 2020, a total of 17,434 COVID-19 tests were already conducted by both facilities, the case study said.

Patients shoulder half of COVID-19 testing costs in the city's public facility while the other half is covered by PhilHealth, according to the case study.

In turn, most of the Tacloban residents involved in the case study consultation said that the government should expand its health

Participants said that "the government should provide free dialysis to more indigent kidney patients, free medication for diabetes and hypertension diseases, free COVID-19 tests, and free vitamins to children and adults," the case study said.

The government should also consider increasing the amount of relief goods it distributes to residents, according to Khaleen, who has seven children.

Home Visitations: An uncanny yet necessary measure of elementary schools amidst the risk of the global pandemic

BY: SHEILA C. CABAZARES

Are you familiar with the concept of behaviorism? How about its major proponents B.F Skinner and John Watson? I guess if you're in the Education or Psychology field this would probably ring a bell in your mind.

During my college years I encountered these people and their contributed studies with one of the most prominent cognitive school of thought.

Taking this psychosocial theory in account, I came down into a realization while applying it as my outlook as an elementary teacher.

While the whole modular distance learning is going on, I saw how my learners were having difficulty with answering their modules. With parents or available guardians replacing the role of teachers in the learning process, such regress wasn't totally surprising.

Importance of home visitations now comes into picture. Current research findings support the continued use of teacher home visit programs as a tool to encourage students' academic success and parent involvement, with many studies also noting teach-

City LGU, PDEA launch Balay Silangan facility for drug offenders

MAASIN CITY- The city government here has partnered with the Philippine Drug Enforcement Agency (PDEA) in efforts at changing the lives of drug pushers for the better through a facility called Balay Silangan.

"This is a reformation center for drug offenders, for pushers, patterned after Bahay Pagbabago of PDEA, where we conduct activities for about 1,000 plus (individuals), and we are trying to reform each one of them," City Mayor Nacional Mercado said during the launching ceremony Wednesday.

Attending the launch were personnel from PDEA regional office led by Atty. Benjamin Gaspi, assistant regional director, who signed Gilbert Buenafe, PDEA regional director.

Others present were City Vice Mayor Maloney Samaco, city councilors, heads of agencies from the national and provincial offices, as well as city offices that comprise the anti-drug abuse council.

Balay Silangan is located near the now popular, mostly frequented Bayview Park, a seaside haven within the city's government center in barangay Combado.

The launching date coincided with the barangay fiesta celebration at a time when the city strictly implemented a supplemental executive order preventing outside fiesta goers from coming in as a way to stop the current spike in confirmed COVID cases.

The building itself, the MOA in behalf of whose construction was finished around second quarter last year, served as an alternate isolation house for COVID-positive patients, Mayor Mercado revealed, adding that at the time of the launching, there were still occupants in the second floor.

"This is a great partnership of the PDEA and the city government, and this is also a requirement of the Dangerous Drugs Board," Mayor Mercado

As soon as the current dwellers would be out, and the building no longer utilized as alternate isolation unit, lectures, programs, and other related socio-economic interventions for drug surrenderers will be held at Balay Silangan, the mayor announced.
